

Guidelines for Delivering Accessible Customer Service at the County of Bruce

Accessible Customer Service at the County of Bruce

The County of Bruce is committed to providing quality goods and services that are accessible to all persons that we serve.

Provincial Accessibility Standards

The Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act, 2005 (AODA) was passed by the provincial government with the goal of creating standards to improve accessibility across the province in five areas:

- Customer Service
- Information and Communication
- Transportation
- Employment
- Built Environment

The Accessibility Standards for Customer Service is the first of the five standards and took effect on January 1, 2010. The following is a summary of the key requirements of the Customer Service Standards:

1. Establish policies, practices and procedures for providing goods or services to people with disabilities.
2. Communicate with a person with a disability in a way that takes their disability into account.
3. Set a policy to allow people to use their own personal assistive devices to access our goods or services.
4. Allow people with disabilities to be accompanied by their guide dog or service animal in those areas of our premises that are open to the public unless the animal is excluded by law.
5. Permit people with disabilities who use a support person to bring that person with them while accessing goods or services.
6. Train staff, volunteers, contractors and any other people who interact with the public or other third parties on our behalf.
7. Establish a process for people to provide feedback on how we provide goods or services to people with disabilities.
8. Provide notice when facilities or services are unavailable.

What do we mean when we say “Disability”?

A disability as defined by the AODA includes:

- Any degree of physical disability, infirmity, malformation or disfigurement that is caused by bodily injury, birth defect or illness
- A condition of mental impairment or a developmental disability
- A learning disability or a dysfunction in one or more of the processes involved in understanding or using symbols or spoken language
- A mental disorder
- An injury or disability for which benefits were claimed or received under the insurance plan established under the Workplace Safety and Insurance Act, 1997

Accessible customer service can mean many things. Mostly it is the understanding that each individual may need a slightly different type of accommodation for the service we provide.

Some examples of this include:

- A person who is blind may need to have information read aloud to them
- An individual with a learning disability may need to have instructions written down
- Someone who uses a wheelchair may need help in finding an accessible route

Accessible customer service is good customer service – courteous, helpful and prompt.

How can I provide excellent service to persons with disabilities?

Always start with people first. In language, that means saying “person with a disability” rather than a disabled person. In any interaction, it means addressing the person’s service needs rather than focusing on the disability.

If you don’t know someone or if you are not familiar with the disability, it’s better to wait until the individual describes his/her situation to you, rather than to make your own assumptions. Many types of disabilities have similar characteristics and your assumptions may be wrong. Keep in mind that disabilities are not always visible.

Each table below defines a specific category of disability and outlines some best practices and tips to help you provide service to our customers.

Hearing Disabilities:

Definition:	Best Practices and Tips for Serving Customers:
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Hearing loss can cause problems in distinguishing certain frequencies, sounds or words • Deaf – Severe to profound hearing loss • Hard of Hearing – a person who uses their residual hearing and speech to communicate • Deafened – caused to hear poorly or not at all 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Attract the customer’s attention before speaking – gentle touch on the shoulder or wave of your hand – and say “hello” from outside their personal space • Look directly at the person • Speak clearly, keep your hands away from your face • Reduce background noise • Ensure appropriate lighting • Personal matters should be discussed in a private room to avoid other people overhearing. • If necessary, ask if another method of communicating would be easier, for example, using a pen and paper

Most importantly, if you are nervous, relax. People with disabilities are generally aware they may need some accommodations and will work with you. Just remember to ask how you can help.

How should I interact with persons with disabilities who use assistive devices, the assistance of a service animal or a support person?

Assistive Equipment:

Definition:	Do	Don't
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Devices that people may bring with them or that are already on the premises and are used to assist persons with disabilities in carrying out activities or in accessing the services provided by the County of Bruce. • Assistive devices include, but are not limited to, wheelchairs, walkers, white canes used by people who are blind or have low vision, portable magnifiers, recording machines, assistive listening devices, personal oxygen tanks and devices for grasping. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ensure that the customer is permitted to enter the premises with the device and to utilize the device unless excluded by law • Remove potential barriers to the use of assistive devices where possible • Ensure persons with disabilities are aware of assistive devices available on the providers' premises or otherwise supplied by the provider • Offer assistive devices in a manner that respects the person's dignity and independence 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Lean on or reach over a customer or their device

Service Animal:

Definition:	Do	Don't
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • An animal trained specifically to assist an individual with disabilities. Many times it is readily apparent that the animal is used by a person with a disability for reasons relating to his or her disability. For example, a guide dog wearing a harness. • If it is not readily apparent that the animal is a service animal, then a letter is required from a physician or nurse confirming that the person requires the animal for reasons relating to the disability. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Allow service animals anywhere customers normally have access • Permit the customer to keep the service animal with him or her unless the animal is otherwise excluded by law from the premises (e.g. areas where food is prepared) • Leave the care and supervision of the service animal with the customer 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Talk to, touch or make eye contact with the service animal

Support Person:

Definition:	Do	Don't
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Those who accompany a person with a disability to help with communication, mobility, personal care or medical needs or with access to goods or services• May be a paid professional, a volunteer, a family member or a friend	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Permit customers and their support person to enter the premises together• Provide the person with a disability access to their support person while on the premises• Obtain consent from the customer if confidential information is going to be shared when a support person is present• Speak directly to your customer, not the support person	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Charge the support person an admission fee or access fee when they are assisting a person with a disability in obtaining, using or benefiting from the County's goods and services

What happens if for some reason we can't serve a person with a disability?

It is possible that from time to time there will be disruptions in service, such as elevators under repair, renovations that limit access to an area, or technology that is temporarily unavailable. If a disruption in service is planned, and expected, it is important to provide reasonable notice.

Customers with disabilities may go to a lot of trouble to access services such as booking specialized transit or arranging for their support person to attend. By providing reasonable notice of service unavailability, you can save the customer an unnecessary trip. Notice may be given by posting the information in visible places at premises owned or operated by the County, on the County's website or by any other method that may be reasonable in the circumstances.

In the event of an unexpected disruption in service, provide notice quickly and in as many ways as possible. The notice must include information about:

- the reason for the disruption
- its anticipated duration
- alternative facilities or services, if available

It is important to recognize that there are internal and external resources available to assist you in delivering service to persons with disabilities:

- Review the Accessible Customer Service Policy and the Accessibility Plan at www.brucecounty.on.ca
- Review resources available at www.accesson.ca
- Speak to your Team Leader, Supervisor and/or Manager
